Working Wood in the 18th Century (Registration required)

To Furnish a Town: High, Low, and In-Between

27th Annual Conference-January 23 through 26

"Handmade of solid wood construction!" Words like those sound expensive and exclusive to a modern ear, but they describe every piece of furniture known to Williamsburg's pre-Revolutionary residents from the most fashionable chair in the Governor's Palace to the humblest stool in an enslaved person's quarters. Join us as craftspeople and scholars from throughout Colonial Williamsburg along with special guest presenters take that diversity in matters of taste, status, and budget as an opportunity to celebrate the ingenuity and quality reflected in all levels of work.
