Colonial Williamsburg's Merchants Square Celebrates Three New Stores With Ribbon Cutting Ceremony

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (Dec. 15, 2021) – Colonial Williamsburg’s Merchants Square is celebrating the official grand opening of three new stores with a ribbon-cutting ceremony, adding new retail offerings to the historic shopping district’s robust list of tenants. The ribbon-cutting ceremony will take place Dec. 17 at 10 a.m.

“We are excited to be celebrating the opening of three new retail stores in Merchants Square, further positioning the area as a premiere shopping location for both Williamsburg locals and students, as well as visitors to the area,” said Keith Johnson, Director of Commercial and Residential Property at Colonial Williamsburg. “With an abundance of specialty and locally owned boutiques, Merchants Square continues to grow as a must-stop destination for those in the Williamsburg area.”

The new store openings are J.McLaughlin, FatFace, and Penny and a Sixpence, which have leased retail spaces in the former Williams Sonoma building at 440 W. Duke of Gloucester Street.

- J.McLaughlin is a fashion retailer offering classic clothes that tap into the iconic legacy of true American sportswear.
- FatFace is a UK-based apparel and accessories retailer. This will be FatFace’s second Virginia location.
- Penny and a Sixpence specializes in sterling silver jewelry and other merchandise.

Merchants Square, the shopping and dining district adjacent to Colonial Williamsburg’s renowned Historic Area, is home to more than 40 shops and restaurants. Specialty boutiques offer products ranging from apparel to fine jewelry, art, specialty foods and gifts.

Merchants Square is recognized as one of the first planned shopping malls in the United States. Built in 1935, Merchants Square was designed to reflect a synthesis of colonial and early 19th-century architecture—design influences collectively known as Colonial Revival.
